

The Myth

Once upon a time there was a strong Source that brought wealth and beauty to the people and the land. Everything was flourishing and abundant. But for a long time people had tried to lead their life without the strong and sometimes fearful force of the Excluded Ones. So the Excluded Ones felt resentment, their powers were not used and one day the people woke up and found that the Source of Life was blocked. In every way they tried to restore the Source. Experts from far were called in to solve the threatening situation, but the flow of the waters of life did not return. The land dried out, food became scarce, city's burned and people were dying. So the Three Keepers of Destiny: History, Present and Mystery were called upon. From the darkness of the underworld History released Snake and Snake brought the knowledge of shedding the old skin leaving it behind to be scattered by the winds. The Present called upon Crystal and in the pure silent stillness the Crystal showed all aspects of the seen and the unseen, the desired and the suppressed, the excluded and the wealthy, the lies that covered the land, the bitterness of those who believed, the division between peoples and nations, the wars that never should have been fought, the children who never got love and a chance to grow up. Mystery called upon Eagle and Eagle took flight and soars high above the land finding the forces of the waters of life, bringing back the magic of the eternal circle of life that never ends. With the three powers a cleansing and healing process started. They showed the people that the Excluded Ones brings in lessons for everyone to see and that what have been denied can't be denied. The three powers showed the people that the Excluded Ones are the bearers of all the suppressed pain, the lack of love, the denial of all life that is linked to each other and to the earth on which we live. Now people clearly saw the forces of good and evil, of life and death that is bound to all life on earth. They saw that no one can overcome these forces, unless they are included in everyone's life. In this clearness and truth the blockade dissolves, the force of the Excluded Ones where invited among the people and the Source of Life flowed strong again, colours returned to the land. The people celebrated life again and the Source of Life filled the land and its people with beauty. Life took normal course again.
